The origins

ARABICA

The Arabica bean from Brazil is considered to be the highest quality type coffee bean. It also belongs to milder beans due to its 1.1 to 1.7 % caffeine content. Originating in Ethiopia, the Arabica bean grows in tropical and subtropical areas between 900 and 2000 meters above sea level. It is the most sensitive of coffee plants and requires intensive care. All this makes the Arabica bean an especially mild, aromatic and rounded coffee bean with a noble bitter taste.

ROBUSTA

The Robusta bean, on the other hand, is less celebrated than the Arabica bean. The Robusta bean is exported from India; however, it originally stems from West Africa. As the name suggests, the bean acts as robust shield against disease, heat and other climate influences. Its caffeine content ranges from 2 to 4 %, which is significantly higher than that of the Arabica bean. Also, the acidity content is twice as high.

Both of these "Grande Dames" among coffee beans are blended in our KAFFEE 100, KAFFEE 90/10, KAFFEE 50/50 and KAFFEE 10/90 to provide an extraordinary experience. The taste intensity varies from mild/gentle for a harmonious café crème to strong/fiery for a spirited espresso.

Our wide coffee selection is as diverse as life itself!

* is also available decaffeinated
